Sell and buy houses, lots and farms on commission. Houses rented and

Who Is Forbidden to Speak the Name of Name on Peril of His Life—Subsequent Disappearance of the Strange Man.A certain gentleman, whom I shall call Herr L., was sent to Texas from Berlin by a syndicate of German noblemen who were desirous of investing in land for the purpose of establishing an extensive ranch. Herr L. stopped in Fort Worth for a few days, and, hearing favorable accounts of the country lying northwest of this city, became impressed with the idea that he would find there a suitable location for the proposed ranch.
He wished to visit the sections he thought of purchasing, and your correspondent, as agent for the Houston and Texas Central, which owned the lands, was appointed to accompany him. We left the railroad at Vernon, and went by private conveyance to the tract in question, which lay some eighteen miles out from that town.As we left the hotel at Vernon we asked the landlord if there was any house on the road where we could put up for the night should it happen that we would not be able to make the return trip that day."So house at all, sir," said mine host, "except that of the hermit."

"The hermit?" we both exclaimed.

"Yes, the hermit of the plains. He's a singular foreign character, who lives some fifteen miles from here, all alone, in a little shanty about half a mile off the road. He's so mighty unsociable he's got himself the name of the hermit of the plains. He might take you in, Mr.— but it's one of his peculiarities that he can't bear a German [with a glance at my companion], and he wouldn't accommodate me to save his life."

"A hermit?" we both exclaimed.

"Yes, as I said, as we drove off."

We had a capital pair of brisk little Texas ponies, all fire and nerve, and the roads being good, reached our object point in good time, but several hours were consumed in driving over the country, and, unconscious of the flight of the short day, we were surprised to find ourselves near its close. Another reason for haste was also apparent in the purplish masses of cloud lying near the horizon that threatened a storm. In an incredibly short time darkness was on us and the entire heavens black with the coming tempest. The ponies became unmanageable at the first peal of thunder and forsook the road, which I vainly endeavored to find again; but the vivid flashes of lightning, instead of serving me, only added to my confusion. An hour's plunging here and there in the bald prairie threw me completely out of my reckoning, and when at last the storm had spent itself and the rain began to pour down in torrents, I couldn't have told my right hand from my left. Herr L. called my attention to a dim but steady spark of light burning close to the horizon at no great distance from us.
Taking it to be at some house we drove the now subdued ponies straight to it, and found ourselves before a low shanty, through whose unshuttered window that welcome light was shining. We knocked, and a voice in English, though with a slight foreign accent, called out to know who we were. We replied that we were two belated, lost travelers, who sought the shelter of a roof for the night. After some delay the door was opened, and we stepped in. A man of average height, but of a commanding, elegant bearing, stood holding in his hand a candle, whose light falling on his face revealed it most distinctly. Herr L. looked at him and at once exclaimed in amazement:"God in heaven, it is the Count von

In the manufacture of cotton goods

New England, it must be admitted, has the two great advantages of cheap money and long years of experience in the business. Their constant tendency, however, is in the direction of finer grades of goods, and there is no reason why the South should not produce coarse and medium cotton goods at figures that would defy competition in any market. Many mills in the cotton belt are proving this, too. Labor is cheap, the raw material can be had right at the mill door without freight rates, and all that is neededis capital and a little skilled labor at first to instruct the unskilled to make such an enterprise profitable.

Charlotte, N. C., has a cotton mill conducted on the co-operative share-holding principle, which has worked well, and if some one with the requisite amount of ability and energy takes hold of the project here there is no doubt that it would be successful.

THE congressional circus will soon begin its annual performance before the American public. Reed, of Maine, with a wig, painted and powdered cheeks, with his hands in his pockets and arms akimbo would make an excellent clown and prove a great drawing card to any show that might securehim. He is only open to engagements now for the speakership's chair. He may compromise, however, later with being ring-master.

The New Discoverer.

You have heard your friends and neighbors talking about it. You may yourself be one of the many who know from personal experience just how good a thing it is. If you have ever tried it, you are one of its staunch friends, because the wonderful thing about it is, that when once given a trial, Dr. King's New Discoverer ever after holds a place in the house. If you have never used it and should beafflicted with a cough, cold or any Throat, Lung or Chest trouble, secure a bottle at once and give it a fair trial. It is guaranteed every time, or money refunded. Trial bottles free "the Whooping Cough, and with the "aid of your Cough Cure, they had it "very light compared with the neigh-

Saved From Consumption.

Several physicians predicted that Mr. Asa B. Rowley, druggist, of Chicago, would soon have consumption, caused by an aggravated case of catarrh. Customers finally induced him to try Clarke's Extract of Flax (Papillon) Catarrh Cure. He says:

"The result was unprecedented. I "commenced to get well after the first "application and am now, after a few "weeks, entirely cured." It will do the same for you. Price, $1.00. Try Clarke's Flax Soap for the Skin, and you will use no other. 25 cents. All of Clarke's Flax remedies are for sale

A Scrap of Paper Saves Her Life.

It was just an ordinary scrap of wrapping paper, but it saved her life.

She was in the last stages of consumption, told by physicians that she was inevitably and could live only a short time; she weighed less than seventy pounds. On a piece of wrapping paper she read of Dr. King's New Discoverer, and got a sample bottle. It helped her, she bought a large bottle, it helped her more, bought another and grew better fast continued its use and is now strong, healthy, rosy, plump, weighing 140 pounds. For fuller particu-
